Building on a Strong Foundation

Bridgewater College founder, Daniel Christian Flory, “stood for the development of all aspects of man’s nature, the moral, the physical, and the social,
as well as the intellectual,” and established his school on those principles, principles that remain fundamental at Bridgewater today.

Quote taken from statements by John S. Flory and Paul Haynes Bowman

The Mission of Bridgewater College is to educate and develop the whole person.
Our graduates will be equipped to become leaders, living ethical, healthy, useful and fulfilling lives with a strong sense of personal accountability and civic responsibility.

This mission is carried out in a learning community, with Christian values, high standards of integrity and excellence, affirming and challenging each member.

The successes of the present are built on the events of the past. Through the work of each generation of students, faculty, administrators and supporters, the foundation of Bridgewater College has been built and strengthened. It is on this foundation that the Bridgewater of today stands.

As we celebrate the events of 1999-2000, we also reflect on our heritage – the vision and achievements of our predecessors who laid the groundwork so that we might succeed; and we look to a new century with anticipation and work to assure that the Bridgewater of tomorrow remains strong.

The generosity of each contributor to Bridgewater College is genuinely appreciated. Without your loyal support many programs and activities now available to our students would not be possible. Thank you for your demonstrated faith in Bridgewater College.

Every effort is made to assure that this annual report is accurate. Should you note any mistakes or omissions, please call them to the attention of the Office of Institutional Advancement so that records can be corrected. Please call (540) 828-5453 to report corrections.

Bridgewater College

Office of the President

November 2000

Dear Friends:

Pausing from time to time to evaluate our strengths is a necessary checkpoint as we build for Bridgewater College's future. This 1999-2000 edition of the President's Report and Honor Roll of Donors highlights some of the historic foundations that have positioned us for growth and for excellence in every area of college life.

We derive our 21st century strength from historic connections.

From a personal perspective, I am continually grateful for the leadership of the presidents who served before me. From our founder, D.C. Flory, through the tenures of Walter B. Yount, John S. Flory, Paul Haynes Bowman, Jacob I. Baugher, Warren D.

Bowman and Wayne F. Geisert, Bridgewater College has been blessed by able, visionary administrators. Stories of how these men helped individual students to find the means to attend college and then encouraged them in pursuing their life's callings inspire my involvement with today's students.

The quality of our faculty has been exceptional. I have such an appreciation for the mentors I found on the Bridgewater faculty in the early 1960s, and I see students today delighting in the friendships and professional relationships they are building with a truly wonderful corps of teachers. Our faculty is a strong foundation for our future achievements as a college.

Our affiliation with the Church of the Brethren also remains strong. We incorporate the denomination's commitment to service into our Personal Development Portfolio program, and we enjoy seeing our graduates in leadership at local churches and at the denominational level. We also recognize that we are strengthened by diversity. The great majority of our students are not Brethren, and we welcome students from many denominations and faiths.

Of course, every college's strength lies in its alumni. In the pages that follow, you will see the names of hundreds of Bridgewater alumni. Many names are italicized, indicating that in addition to supporting the College financially, these alumni volunteer in some capacity. As alumni participation rises, we are sure to do even better in the national rankings that get so much attention such as the U.S. News & World Report "America's Best Colleges" rankings.

We have the firm foundation to build on — and, for the first time, we have more than 1,200 full-time students this fall! Thanks to every one of you for your advice, friendship and gifts as we continue to make Bridgewater College a college of character and a community of excellence.

President

"College of Character, Community of Excellence"

Bridgewater, Virginia 22812

Daniel Christian Flory had a vision to provide young men and women with a liberal education while surrounding them with “whole-some moral and religious influences.” He believed in the importance of higher education and saw the need for a school that would provide students, particularly those from the German

Baptist Brethren tradition (Church of the Brethren since 1908), an opportunity for advanced study in Virginia.

Amid strong opposition from many church leaders who were against higher education, a young Flory, at the age of 26, opened his school in the fall of 1880 on the banks of Spring Creek in Rockingham County, Va.

The principles that D.C. Flory set forth for his new school – a liberal arts education in a Christian environment – are the cornerstone of Bridgewater College today. The College is charged in its mission to “educate the whole person,” mind, body and spirit, and to do so in a learning community with Christian values. Students are encouraged, and have been throughout the College’s history, to pursue a broad education, to stretch themselves and try new things so they can discover how they think and feel and who they are. It’s through this encouragement that athletes can find a new voice of expression on the concert stage, scientists can experience the competition of athletics, sociologists can learn how the physical world influences the human world, and businesspeople can gain insights into the human condition. Likewise students are encouraged to explore their spiritual, as well as their mental and physical sides. While the College maintains strong ties to the Church of the Brethren, students from all Christian denominations and other religious traditions find a place to nurture their faith and learn at Bridgewater. CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

Recreational sports and athletic competition have played important roles at Bridgewater for both men and women, despite intercollegiate competitions’ on-again, off-again history during the College’s early years. Today men and women compete in 19 intercollegiate sports and participate in a vigorous intramural program.

Highlights of 1999-2000

New Semester Calendar — The academic calendar that had for nearly three decades been comprised of three 10-week terms and one 3-week Interterm was changed to semesters beginning in the fall of 1999. The new calendar is divided into two 15-week semesters with an Interterm in January. Classes meet two or three times per week instead of four as on the term system. Benefits of the semester system include giving students more time to study between classes, and also aligning BC's calendar more closely with other institutions to take advantage of collaborative learning opportunities.

General Education - Phase I Implemented — New students began studying under a new curriculum that is designed to teach foundational skills. The curriculum was developed with the assistance of a $105,000 grant from the Teagle Foundation. Five basic interdisciplinary core courses – effective writing, oral communication, quantitative reasoning, critical thinking and wellness – are now required for all students beginning with the '99-'00 freshman class.

Women's Soccer Joins ODAC Competition — Soccer was added to the other 10 intercollegiate competitive sports for women. The inaugural season, under head coach Ian Spooner, was a successful one with the team qualifying for the ODAC tournament with a 9-8 overall record.

National Recognition — Bridgewater was recognized in two top publications during 1999 – 2000. The College achieved a "Top 10" (No. 8) ranking on the U.S. News & World Report's America's Best Colleges Guidebook "Best Values" list as one of its "Great Schools at Great Prices." BC was the only Virginia college cited in that category. The magazine also included Bridgewater on its "Best Colleges" list, ranked No. 13 among regional liberal arts colleges in the South.

The Templeton Guide: Colleges that Encourage Character Development cited Bridgewater among 60 colleges and universities nationwide for the quality of first-year programs, specifically BC's Personal Development Portfolio (PDP) program freshmen component, and among 35 U.S. colleges and universities for emphasis on academic honesty recognizing Bridgewater's 50-year-old, student managed Honor Code, which focuses on developing student character.

Class of 2000 by Major

Jessie Ball duPont Center for Teacher Education Opens — The new Jessie Ball duPont Center for Teacher Education, two state-of-the-art model classrooms, one with a model educational media center, for professional teacher training, were added to the education program in 1999 – 2000. The model classrooms, which provide BC's pre-service teachers the opportunity to learn how to use instructional equipment and technology before they graduate, were made possible by a $50,000 grant from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund, which has a long-standing relationship with the College and the Education Department.

Family Weekend Replaces Parents Weekend

Weekend — In its 41st year, Parents Weekend took on the more inclusive name, "Family Weekend," and activities were expanded to include games, movies and other entertainment for the younger siblings of BC students, in addition to the traditional events for parents.

Turner Endowed Professorship — Dr. Jesse E. Hopkins Jr., a member of the Bridgewater faculty since 1977, was named the College's first Edwin L. Turner Distinguished Professor of Music. Mr. Turner, a 1926 Bridgewater graduate, is a retired banker who now lives in Charlottesville, Va.

New Founders Day Celebration — The annual Founder's Day celebration became an all-campus event. Students, faculty and staff and friends of the College were invited to a luncheon held in Nininger Hall following the morning convocation. Dr. Bernard Logan, a 1938 graduate and former head of the Economics and Business Department, delivered the convocation address and received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Commencement 2000 — On Sunday, May 21, 2000, Bridgewater said goodbye to 203 graduating seniors, and sent them out into the wider world to launch their careers or attend graduate and professional school. A total of 78 students graduated with honors — eight summa cum laude, 25 magna cum laude and 45 cum laude. Dr. Robert W. Neff, president emeritus of Juniata College in Huntingdon, Pa., spoke to the graduates and their guests at commencement held on the campus mall, and the Rev. Lawrence M. Johnson, '75, a Roman Catholic priest and member of the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees, gave the baccalaureate address.

Self-Study Winding Down — For two years, the College has been undergoing an intensive self-study in preparation for the 10-year reaccreditation review by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). Bridgewater was first accredited by SACS in 1925 with much fanfare and celebration. Members of the current faculty, staff and student body have been examining all facets of the College's academic and administrative functions, suggesting and initiating changes and improvements prior to the visit by the reaccreditation team in October 2000.

College Chapel Transformation — Renovations began on the College Chapel during the late winter of 2000 to transform it into the new home for the Department of Music, as well as several administrative offices. The renovations included the installation of a new heating system and central air conditioning, upgrading the electrical system, adding soundproofing and bringing restrooms into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The building was dedicated in late September as the Carter Center for Worship and Music in honor of the family of Daniel Lee and Anna Mary Watts Carter, who were students at Bridgewater in the late 1880s. Their children and grandchildren have continued to be involved with the College, including granddaughter Barbara Carter Stone and grandson L. Clyde Carter Jr. who serve on the Board of Trustees.

Funkhouser Center Planning Completed — A fourth $1 million gift from retired Harrisonburg banker, Fred O. Funkhouser, moved the College's new health and wellness center off the drawing boards and toward an August 2000 groundbreaking. Mr. Funkhouser's four major gifts, along with his annual support to the College which began in 1960, make him the second largest donor in Bridgewater's history. ■■■■

When the faculty voted in 1953 to enroll an African American school teacher from Bridgewater, the College became one of the first predominately white, liberal arts colleges in Virginia to admit African American students.

Now the Black Student Congress, established in 1995, provides support and aid to African American students and recognizes the contribution of African Americans on campus and in society with such events as the annual Martin Luther King Jr. breakfast held for the campus community.

In the College's relatively short 120-year history, it too has been stretched to grow, explore and change while remaining committed to its founding principles. Change has not always come easily, however, as evidenced by the student protests of the late 1960s and early '70s, demanding more liberal dorm visitation and the absolution of required chapel attendance among other things. Other changes occurred naturally, such as the first admittance of African American students in the 1950s, which placed Bridgewater on the cutting-edge for this social change among Virginia colleges and universities.

From oil lamps to the Internet, the 20th century brought vast changes in technology, communications and social customs to the College. By providing new resources, including campus-wide computer networking to give all students, faculty and staff access to the Internet and e-mail; adding new academic programs to meet student needs; and constructing new facilities, such as the new Funkhouser Health and Wellness Center scheduled to open during the fall of 2001, the College continues to rise to meet these changes with the help of its alumni, friends and supporters. ■ ■ ■

Role of Women — Co-education was a fundamental principle around which D.C. Flory structured his school at a time when many colleges catered to either one gender or the other. Women have been actively involved in academics, athletics and campus life throughout the College's history and have made up approximately one-half of the student body since the 1960s.

Religious Heritage — Education in a Christian environment is a cornerstone of the Bridgewater tradition. The College, founded on religious principles and beliefs and governed by the church for many years, maintains a strong connection to the Church of the Brethren, however, this connection has never been exclusive. Students from all Christian denominations and other religious traditions have been welcomed into the Bridgewater community. Today nine student religious groups are active on campus, and "students are encouraged to actively pursue their faith development within a wholesome balance of learning, service and leisure," (The Eagle student handbook). Historically, the majority (75 percent or more at times) of the student body came from a Church of the Brethren background. A gradual decline in this percentage began in the 1960s and now is typically around 18 percent.

Social life for Bridgewater students has changed during the last century, keeping pace with the changing society. Until the early 1930s, the literary societies were the center of campus social life. Today student activities are a little more varied. Pictured at right, graduating seniors and their guests danced the night away at the 2000 Great Tent Event sponsored by the Alumni Association.

Bridgewater's alumni, parents and friends generously shared their financial resources with the College throughout the 1999-2000 fiscal year. Donors' cash gifts totaled over $3.4 million. In addition to that generous support, new pledges and future estate commitments boosted the fund raising year total to $5.4 million.

Fred O. Funkhouser, a retired Harrisonburg banker and friend of the College, helped point Bridgewater toward its future in 1998-99 and again in 1999-2000 with gifts totaling $4.4 million that spearheaded the construction of a $5.6 million wellness center. Because of Mr. Funkhouser's advanced and thoughtful planning, the College broke ground on the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness in the summer of 2000.

The George S. Aldhizer estate provided a significant gift payment of $700,000 during the last fiscal year and stood as a shining example of how one's vision of leaving a legacy can impact the lives of a college and its students for years to come. All of Bridgewater's 1999-2000 donors, regardless of the size of their gifts, demonstrated a unified faith in the job the College is performing.

It is truly Bridgewater's donors who illuminate the pathway for the College's work in progress. The generosity reflected in these pages is a testimony to the commitment, character and compassion of Bridgewater's supporters.

Honor Roll of Donors

For 120 years, Bridgewater College has operated on its founding principles of a liberal education in a Christian environment. The College has thrived as an institution of higher learning because men and women who believed in the school and its mission have invested their precious time, talents and resources to undergird it for continued success and excellence.

It is with deep appreciation that the names of the individuals and groups who have carried on the tradition of supporting the College are listed in this publication — those whose life-long cumulative giving has reached the benchmark of $50,000 are recognized here, and those who made a gift to Bridgewater in 1999-2000 are named on the following pages.

A Stronger Foundation

Through the generous support of many individuals and organizations in 1999-2000, Bridgewater is a stronger college, better able to meet the daily academic, physical and social needs of its students. Those people who demonstrated their faith in the College during the last year, either through Annual Fund contributions, estate-related gifts or grants, are recognized on the following pages with our gratitude and appreciation.

Each year, the Annual Fund provides the financial strength for the College's operating budget. The generosity of alumni, parents and friends of the College determines the strength of that financial bedrock annually.

The strength of the Annual Fund Campaign depends on the 250 volunteers who give their time and leadership to help the Office of Institutional Advancement staff raise the funds. Jeff Heppard, Class of '74, led the 1999-2000 Annual Fund Campaign effort as the national chairman. Increasing alumni participation and the overall cash gift flow to the campaign are the standing challenges.

In 1999-2000, Bridgewater's supporters contributed almost $1 million to the Annual Fund through outright cash gifts, matching gifts and gifts-in-kind.

The alumni campaign saw a four percent increase in overall giving and a graduate alumni participation rate of 24 percent. The participation rate of parents exceeded goal with a 63 percent increase among current parents and a 29 percent increase among parents of alumni. Parents of current students also increased their contribution amounts by 14 percent. Faculty and staff participation was 30 percent this past fiscal year with 12 new donors joining the campaign. The friends' participation rate exceeded goal at 27 percent. Also, gift amounts in that important sub-campaign increased 43 percent. The annual Business and Professional Campaign volunteers raised $122,026, an increase of almost $11,000 over the 1998-99 campaign. ■■■

Since 1886, Bridgewater has conferred more than 9,000 degrees and sent its graduates into the wider world with a foundation of knowledge and experiences to benefit them in their life's pursuits. Many of these alumni generously remember their alma mater by sharing their resources, knowledge and talents to help the College enhance the education and experiences of today's students.

On the following pages, alumni who made a gift to the College during 1999-2000 are listed by class. Likewise, loyal friends who support the College through gifts of their resources and time are listed in the section following alumni. The names of individuals who also served the College as a board or committee members, as class agents, or in other ways are italicized.

Glenn Suter says he's never met his guardian angel, but he's been told he must have one. His career certainly fell into place as if there was an outside force guiding it. But Glenn thinks it's about "being in the right place at the right time and having somebody who sponsors you."

Bridgewater Professor C. E. Shull was undoubtedly Glenn's sponsor. It was Prof. Shull who believed in Glenn's abilities and fanned his excitement for mathematics, an excitement Glenn first realized under the tutelage of his high school math teacher and mentor, Cecil Hinkel, who was a Bridgewater alumnus.

It also was Prof. Shull who set Glenn's career in motion. When Glenn graduated from BC in 1948 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in mathematics, job prospects were lean, so he reluctantly accepted a teaching job to provide for his wife and baby. However, as Glenn was leaving commencement, Dr. Boyd Harshbarger, a professor from Virginia Polytechnic Institute (Virginia Tech) and BC alumnus, approached him and said that at Prof. Shull's recommendation, he wanted to offer Glenn a full scholarship to graduate school. Glenn remembers, "I said, 'In what?' He said, 'Statistics.' I said, 'What's statistics?!'" Glenn accepted the scholarship sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), and, after fulfilling his one-year teaching contract, he began his 40-plus-year career in a field he had never heard of before that day.

From that point "one thing just led to another, all my life." Each job laid the groundwork for the next – his graduate studies in land sampling led to directing the agriculture census for Virginia (a test study using this technique); which led to an assignment with the U.S. Census Bureau to work on the 1955 Census of Agriculture, developing computerized data tabulation techniques on the first commercial computer; which created opportunities to implement computerized tabulation on a wide array of statistical studies. "You were out on the front edge of what you were doing," learning about a variety of issues as new developments were taking place, and that was exciting. Glenn directed national studies in nutrition (which led to the establishment of the national food stamp program), grazing rights on federal lands, pesticide related causes of breast cancer, and Mexican farm labor issues, to name a few.

Glenn's career with the USDA, which began in graduate school, took him to Richmond, Washington, D.C., and eventually to Albany, N.Y. There he retired from the USDA in 1988 and began his second career as executive for the Empire State Council of Agricultural Organizations, a lobbying organization. He taught night courses throughout his career using the public speaking and teacher training he had received at Bridgewater. In 1996, when he officially retired, he and his wife, Kathleen, moved to the Bridgewater Retirement Village where they now live adjacent to the College where Glenn has remained a committed supporter and volunteer. ■ ■ ■

...building relationships

“We actually met in college. That’s probably the best thing that happened,” Kathryn Rhodes Bremner, ’93, jokes with her husband, David, ’94, about their Bridgewater experience. But actually, for both Kathryn and David, their time at Bridgewater was “an awesome experience.”

The people made it special. “We’re both social creatures,” Kathryn remarked, so the connectedness of a small college environment was important. Kathryn selected Bridgewater mainly because it was so friendly. It was one of several colleges that she visited, and “I just couldn’t get over how friendly everyone was. Everywhere we walked (on the campus tour) people were smiling and saying hello, establishing eye contact. I immediately liked that.... I needed a place where I could know most everyone,” and Bridgewater was such a place.

Living in the dorms, Interterm travel opportunities, sports and just hanging out helped build friendships that have endured the post-college separation. David tried his skill on the basketball court for one year. “Coach Leatherman was kind enough to keep me on the team...and I made a lot of good friends that way.” David is still an avid Eagles fan and member of the Eagle Club (the athletic booster club) and often attends basketball games to cheer on the team. Kathryn was a member of the College Chorale and said “that was probably the most memorable experience of my entire life...Some of my best friends, friends for life, have come out of chorale.”

The Bremners were married in 1995, settled in the Shenandoah Valley and now live in nearby Dayton. Kathryn, who majored in sociology with a concentration in elementary education, later earned a master’s degree in education from James Madison University (JMU). She now teaches at Thomas Harrison Middle School in Harrisonburg and credits her studies in sociology with helping her to deal with “life in the middle,” – pre-pubescent students, adolescents and their parents — and people of all types. “The classes I had on just understanding there are differences of opinion and differences in people... that was of great value,” she said. David is a surveyor for Patton Harris Rust & Associates, an engineering firm headquartered in Northern Virginia. Prior to enrolling at Bridgewater where he studied physical science, he worked for several years for his father’s engineering firm. He considered pursuing a degree in engineering when he graduated, but instead chose to help his family in a new business venture. David, like his family, has an entrepreneurial spirit and is now starting his own company – Richmond Homeowner.com, an Internet clearinghouse of home improvement professionals in the Richmond area.

Kathryn, though content with teaching middle school, is considering pursuing a doctorate degree with aspirations of college level instruction. She has taught several courses at JMU and likes the higher education environment.

Friends remain an important part of the Bremners’ life, and they still keep in touch with many of their close college friends, particularly those who also have settled in the Valley. “It’s been funny... to see how we’ve all grown up,” remarked Kathryn. ■■■

Alumni of Affiliated Schools

Many supporters of Bridgewater completed part or all of their high school or college education at schools which later merged with or were affiliated with the College.
We are proud to include alumni of these schools in our alumni family, and we are grateful for their support.

Friends of Bridgewater College

Bridgewater College receives gifts from many constituencies in addition to its alumni. These friends of the College — members of the Board of Trustees, parents of alumni and current students, faculty and staff, organizations, Church of the Brethren congregations and individuals — share an affection for the College and are committed to helping Bridgewater sustain and build on its foundation of excellence.

Memorial Gifts

Each year, donors who choose to remember a loved one — or to honor a worthy individual — do so with generous gifts to Bridgewater College. We receive these gifts with deep appreciation, and we recognize those special donors and the individuals to whom they paid tribute in 1999-2000.

Community Support

General Education Curriculum Restructuring

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla., has once again shown its support of the College by granting Bridgewater $200,000 to fund the second phase of our general education curriculum restructuring over the next two years. The first phase of restructuring was funded by The Teagle Foundation of New York City and was fully implemented in the fall of 1999.

Jessie Ball duPont was an educator and later a philanthropist. When she died in 1970, her will established the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund to continue her philanthropic work.

SmithKline Beecham Pharmaceuticals

SmithKline Beecham Pharmaceuticals helped bolster the science programs at Bridgewater by donating a used UV/VIS Spectrophotometer. If purchased new, this important instrument would have cost the College $20,000. This equipment adds tremendously to our science students' laboratory experiences by allowing them to freely apply their experimental ideas, rather than designing their research projects around limited equipment availability. This gift was made possible by Sam Moretz, '99, a research scientist at SmithKline Beecham Pharmaceuticals in Bristol, Tenn.

Scholarship Funding

Thanks to a $73,000 grant from the Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation, Inc., of Atlanta, Ga., 40 female Bridgewater College students received scholarships during the 1999-2000 academic year. Eighteen of the recipients earned degrees in psychology, business administration, music, sociology, biology, health science, English, family and consumer sciences, information systems management, and philosophy and religion.

The Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation, Inc. is a charitable private foundation dedicated to the support of needy women in nine southeastern states. The foundation, chartered in 1946, was made possible by provisions in Mrs. Whitehead's youngest son's will. Conkey Pate Whitehead wished to honor his mother, a prominent philanthropic Atlanta businesswoman.

System Planning Corp. Donation

System Planning Corp. in Arlington, Va., donated a vacuum chamber and pump with a power supply and a stand-alone vacuum pump and motor to the physics and biology departments. This caliber of equipment would have cost $15,000 if purchased new. The donation was initiated by Joe Zimmerman, '61, a retired electronics engineer with the U.S. Department of Defense, who now works part-time for System Planning Corp.

Many businesses, corporations and foundations demonstrate their belief in Bridgewater College and its mission through their contributions. Their support strengthens the work of the College and enhances the education and lives of its students. Identified here are the businesses and foundations who helped to support Bridgewater's efforts in 1999-2000.

Alcohol Awareness Program Funding

Bridgewater College received a grant from the Virginia Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) for the second consecutive year in 1999-2000. The Virginia ABC Board gave the College approximately $3,250 to support student programs aimed primarily at stemming underage drinking. The funding was also used for comprehensive student-run education programs about the dangers of binge drinking and alcohol poisoning.

Virginia Department of Education

Bridgewater received a second unsolicited grant award of $80,000 from the Virginia Department of Education (twice the amount awarded last year) to fund training seminars for paraprofessional educators (teacher assistants) across the Commonwealth. This year's seminars were again taught by Rodney Morris, assistant professor of education and Carole Grove, former education department head and professor of education. This exciting seminar series grew out of Bridgewater's summer institute for paraprofessionals held in 1998, which was partly supported by a special education program grant from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla.

Lanna Strawderman always wanted to be a teacher. "I never thought of what I would be if I wasn't a teacher," she said. When she completes her student teaching this December and embarks on a career in elementary education, her goal will finally be realized.

When two state-of-the-art model classrooms, one including a media center, opened in the Education Department during the fall of 1999 (her senior year), Lanna and the other students were excited. The model classrooms, which were funded by a $50,000 grant from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund, are designed to expose students to real-world classroom environments, (both elementary and secondary), and to give them much-needed hands-on experience with teaching aids, resources and technology before they begin teaching.

The Jessie Ball duPont Center for Teacher Education, which is comprised of two model classrooms, one containing a fully equipped media center, opened in the fall of 1999 and is housed in the Education Department of Bridgewater College. It is named in honor of Mrs. Jessie Ball duPont, an educator and philanthropist, and in appreciation of the Jessie Ball duPont Fund for its continued commitment to the department and its efforts. The Fund previously provided financial support for the renovation of Flory Hall (the building where the Education Department is located) in the 1980s and for the development of a special education program in the mid-1990s. Dr. Carole Grove, former professor of education and chair of the Education Department, spearheaded the reorganization of the department and the development of the model classrooms after touring a similar facility at another school.

When students enter the teaching profession, other teachers, principals and administrators "expect them to know everything," says Rodney Morris, assistant professor of education. Students must be certified in their knowledge of teaching technology, and it is assumed that they have experience using that technology and other resources that are common in the classroom. Computers (PCs, Macintosh, and old Apples) and related equipment such as scanners and digital cameras, teaching stations, ceiling-mounted VCRs and LCD projectors linked with classroom computers are all now available to Bridgewater students.

In one class, Lanna was introduced to PowerPoint presentation software. "Since I'm going into teaching, I need to know a lot about technology," she said, and being able to actually create a computerized slide-show and then present it to her class was a valuable experience. A mathematics education class introduced her to, and gave her practice using, "manipulatives," (hands-on, instructional "toys" used to demonstrate and teach math, shapes, patterns and other subjects). She also developed an interactive bulletin board to help children learn the alphabet and associate upper and lower case letters.

The department and the students are very fortunate to have these resources and to have funding from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund, according to Melissa Fretwell, instructor of education. She added, "as far as recruiting (new students), it's definitely an asset," because the department now can offer a practical, interactive learning environment, and that has the potential to attract students to the department and to the profession in the long run.

There is an excitement in Lanna's voice when she talks about teaching. And local teachers and administrators, many who consulted in the equipping and furnishing of the model classrooms, are excited too, because they know that Bridgewater College education graduates will be well prepared for the teaching profession. ■■■

Building for Tomorrow

Throughout its history, Bridgewater College has been supported by hundreds of forward-thinking alumni and friends who, through estate planning, have provided for the Bridgewater of tomorrow with financial gifts today. Through these gifts of scholarships, endowments, bequests and other types of estate-related contributions, these individuals' legacies will strengthen the College and benefit future generations of students.

Bridgewater strives to provide financial and estate planning services for alumni and friends of the College, assisting them in meeting their personal and family financial objectives while establishing support for the College. It is through these generous donations that the school is able to build educational programs, undertake capital projects and enhance the value of each student's educational investment.

Life Income Plans

As of the end of the fiscal year 1999-2000, life income plans, including unitrusts and gift annuities, have been established with the College as beneficiary amounting to $13,851,317.

These arrangements assure donors of substantial lifetime earnings and their gifts ultimately will be used to strengthen the College.

When Harold and Miriam Rohrer Smith attended Bridgewater College in the 1940s, financial resources for most students were scarce. In fact, they were nonexistent, according to Harold. So it was an easy decision for the Smiths to establish a scholarship for Bridgewater students who need financial assistance.

Harold, a native of rural Augusta County, Va., came to Bridgewater to study business. Miriam, who was from Chicago, selected Bridgewater so she wouldn't have to follow her sister through college as she had through grade school and high school. (Her sister was attending Manchester College in Indiana.) Miriam graduated in 1944 with a degree in psychology and returned to Chicago. There she worked in personnel and began graduate course work at the University of Chicago before marrying and raising her family.

When Harold graduated in 1943, he was drafted and entered alternative service and was stationed near Washington, D.C., where he began taking graduate courses at night at the University of Maryland, eventually earning his master's degree in agricultural economics in 1947 and later his Ph.D. in economics from American University in 1952. Harold worked at the University of Maryland throughout his career, first as a professor and then as associate director for the university's Cooperative Extension Service where he found his true calling in administration.

While students at Bridgewater, Harold and Miriam really didn't know each other, because Harold "was dating another lady who became his first wife" (the late Mary Hoover Smith, '43), Miriam added lightly. Harold and Miriam were married in 1980 soon after meeting again nearly 40 years after their BC days, while attending the Church of the Brethren Annual Conference in Seattle. When Harold retired in 1983, the Smiths accepted positions at the Brethren Service Center at New Windsor, Md., where they worked for 6 1/2 years before moving to their Augusta County farm, four miles south of Bridgewater.

The Smiths retained strong ties to the College through the years. "We love Bridgewater College and want others to have the same opportunity," said Miriam. "Bridgewater College really set a course for my life — for work, for service — and I attribute that to the faculty," Harold added. This dedication to the College and a desire to help needy students inspired the Smiths to establish the Harold D. and Miriam R. Smith Memorial Scholarship Fund in 1999, which will be funded by income from a two-life gift annuity. With this purchase of a gift annuity, the Smiths join other members of the College's Codicil Club who are providing funds for the future of the College and its students through estate-related gifts. ■■■
